Required Books:

Fisher, Louis and Katy Harringer, American Constitutional Law, Volume 1, Constitutional Structures, 11th edition. 2016. Carolina Academic Press.

Barron and Dienes, Constitutional Law in a Nutshell, 8th edition. West.

All books are available at the university bookstore and are on closed reserve at Goddard library.

Level of Course:

This course is an upper level course which assumes a basic understanding of American government or American history, and counts for both majors. The course also counts for the Law and Society Concentration. An understanding of the U.S. courts is certainly helpful, but is not required for this course. Except for students with exceptional backgrounds, it is not recommended for first year students. Graduate students will be expected to complete a research paper in addition to the regular undergraduate requirements.

Exams and Grading:

5 Minute Oral Presentation of a Case	15%
3 Type-Written Case Briefs (2 page limit in a paragraph format). Due before case is discussed in class.	25%
In-class all essay Midterm	25%
In-class Final Examination	35%

Case Briefs and Presentations: Dates and cases for oral presentations will be assigned early in the semester. The students can choose any cases presented in full in the textbook for the written case briefs, but the written briefs are due before the case is discussed in class. The best practice is to hand in the written brief at the beginning of the class on the same day that case will probably be discussed. Students cannot write a written brief on the same case that they will present orally. The written case briefs cannot exceed 2 typed pages, double spaced with a 12 point font in a paragraph (essay) format. The information necessary for the written and oral briefs can be found at the end of the syllabus, although I prefer that the written briefs be in paragraph format instead of the outline format shown in the reprint from another con law textbook. For the oral presentation and written case briefs, you should probably read the full case.

EXPECTATIONS of STUDENTS: In order to get their money's worth and have fun with this class, students should want to work hard and think hard. Thus I assume all students will always attend class and complete all reading and other assignments on time. It is essential that you read the cases before they are discussed in class. No late written case briefs will be accepted after the case is discussed in class. Students must contact the professor before the due date concerning problems with exams or oral presentations. Leave a voicemail message if you can't reach me personally or try me via email. Class participation and attendance will weigh heavily in deciding borderline grades. Make-up exams will be given only under extraordinary circumstances. No electronics in class without permission, please.
