HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENTS

Dr. Earl Lewis, president of The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, will deliver this year's Commencement address.

Under Dr. Lewis' guidance, the Mellon Foundation has reaffirmed its commitment to the humanities, the arts, and higher education by emphasizing the importance of continuity and change.

Previously, Dr. Lewis served as Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and as the Asa Griggs Candler Professor of History and African American Studies at Emory University. A noted social historian, he has held faculty appointments at the University of California at Berkeley (1984–89) and the University of Michigan (1989–2004). He has championed the importance of diversifying the academy, enhancing graduate education, re-visioning the liberal arts, exploring the role of digital tools for learning, and connecting universities to their communities.

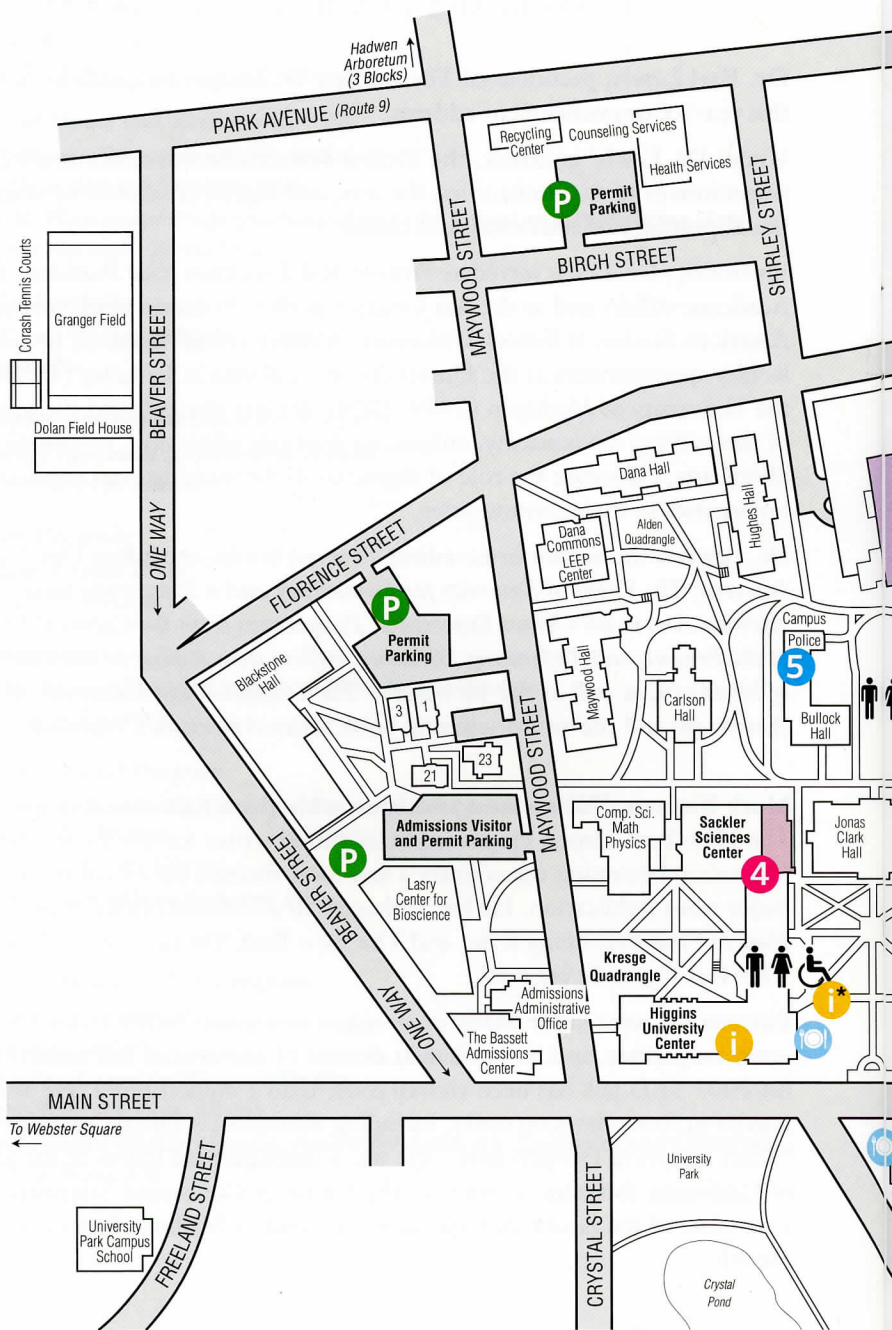

Dr. Lewis is the author or co-editor of seven books, including Our Compelling Interests: The Value of Diversity for Democracy and a Prosperous Society, The African American Urban Experience: Perspectives from the Colonial Period to the Present, and Defending Diversity: Affirmative Action at the University of Michigan, as well as the 11-volume The Young Oxford History of African Americans and the award-winning book series American Crossroads.

Mark Bittman '71 is a food journalist, author and former columnist for The New York Times. He served as lead food writer for the Times' Sunday Magazine, becoming the country's first food-focused op-ed columnist for a major news publication. He has authored 20 acclaimed books, including the How to Cook Everything series and The New York Times' number-one bestseller, VB6: Eat Vegan Before 6:00.

Bittman has written for nearly every major newspaper in the United States and many magazines, and has spoken at dozens of universities and conferences; his 2007 TED talk has been viewed more than a million times. He also has starred in four television series, including Showtime's Emmy Award-winning "Years of Living Dangerously." He was a distinguished fellow at the University of California, Berkeley, a fellow of the Union of Concerned Scientists, and is a member of the faculty of Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health.

Linda Greenhouse is the Joseph Goldstein Lecturer in Law and the Knight Distinguished Journalist-in-Residence at Yale Law School. She spent 40 years as a reporter for The New York Times, 30 of them covering the Supreme Court of the United States. She has received numerous journalism awards, including a 1998 Pulitzer Prize in beat reporting and the Goldsmith Career Award for Excellence in Journalism from Harvard University's Kennedy School.

Greenhouse now writes a bi-weekly Times op-ed column on the Supreme Court and law. She is co-author of The Burger Court and the Rise of the Judicial Right, and published The U.S. Supreme Court: A Very Short Introduction, as well as a biography of Justice Harry A. Blackmun. She is a member of the Council of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and is president of the American Philosophical Society, the first woman to serve in that position in the society's 274-year history. Greenhouse also is one of two non-lawyer honorary members elected to the American Law Institute, which awarded her its Henry J. Friendly Medal in 2002.

COMMENCEMENT NOTES

Clark University was founded in 1887 as the first all-graduate institution in America; the undergraduate college was established in 1902. During the early years of the University, graduate degrees were awarded on an individual basis. Formal commencement exercises began at Clark in June 1905, when bachelor's degrees were awarded for the first time.

From the cap, gown, and hood, it is possible to distinguish the institution from which the wearer graduated, the field of learning in which his or her degree was earned, and the level of degree: bachelor's, master's, or doctoral.

The distinguishing feature of the black mortarboard cap, standard at most colleges and universities in the United States, is the color of the tassel—black for the holder of bachelor's or master's degrees, gold for doctoral degrees and the governing officers of educational institutions.

The gown is normally black, although the chief officers of many universities wear colored gowns, and several institutions have authorized optional doctoral gowns that embody the institution's colors. The level of degree is indicated by the gown's cut. The bachelor's gown, which is relatively simple, has long pointed sleeves. The master's gown is somewhat fuller, and its sleeves, which reach nearly to the wearer's knees, are squared at the ends. The gown for the doctoral degree is cut rather fully. It has velvet panels down the front and around the neck, and bell-shaped sleeves decorated with three horizontal velvet bars.

The hood is the most distinctive feature of academic attire in the United States. Originally used as a cowl, as a shoulder cape, and as a container in which to collect alms, the hood is now worn at the back, suspended from the shoulders. The length of the hood and width of the velvet border indicate the level of the degree held. The length of the bachelor's hood is four feet long, and the border is five inches wide. The hood is lined with the official color or colors of the institution conferring the degree, and the color of the border indicates the field of learning in which the degree is earned.

The gown worn by doctoral candidates was designed and first worn in 1991 to commemorate the one-hundredth anniversary of the awarding of the first Ph.D. at Clark. The robes are emerald green with gold University seals on the lapels. These complement the traditional doctoral hoods, which reflect the University's official colors: white and emerald.

The gold cord worn by students receiving their degrees through the Undergraduate College signifies graduation with honors.

The flags of many nations, and the United Nations, line the walkway of the processional at today's Commencement. These flags represent the homelands of undergraduate and graduate degree recipients. With students from 83 countries in attendance at Clark and members of the faculty involved in research, training and development around the world, Clark's international character is evident and is honored today with this display.
