THE STANLEY KUNITZ-STOCKMAL COLLECTION

SCOPE AND CONTENTS NOTE

Stanley Kunitz was born in Worcester in 1905, six weeks after his father, Solomon, committed suicide in Elm Park. In 1910, his mother, Yetta, married widower Mark Dine. In late 1919, Kunitz, his mother, his two sisters, Sarah and Sophia, and his stepfather moved into a two-family, three-story house at 4 Woodford Street, built by his mother and Mollie A. Siff. On January 1, 1920, Kunitz's stepfather died suddenly of a heart attack. His mother eventually lost the house, signing over her half of the property to Siff in 1925.

Shortly after college, Kunitz moved away from Worcester. Beginning in the 1960s, he returned to give poetry readings and to receive honors. His childhood residences on Green and Providence Streets had been torn down and Kunitz searched unsuccessfully for his boyhood home on Woodford Street. Then, in 1985, he came to Worcester for the week-long Stanley Kunitz Poetry Festival in honor of his 80th birthday, which was sponsored by the Worcester County Poetry Association. On the last day of the festival, Kunitz decided to try once more to find the house on Woodford Street.

Greg and Carol Stockmal, who had bought the house in 1979, found Kunitz and his entourage standing in front of their home. They invited everyone in, and when Kunitz mentioned a pear tree he and his mother had planted in the backyard, Greg told him one still grew there, and it produced abundant fruit. The friendship between the Stockmals and Kunitz began on that day. For twenty years, the Stockmals mailed a box of pears to Kunitz every fall from the tree believed to be the one he and his mother had planted. In 1989, Kunitz published the poem, "My Mother's Pears" and dedicated it to the Stockmals. He visited the Stockmals several times over the years, and they visited Kunitz and his wife in Provincetown and New York City.

The Stanley Kunitz-Stockmal Collection consists of materials collected by Greg and Carol Stockmal and includes: correspondence from Kunitz to the Stockmals; books signed and inscribed by Kunitz and his wife, poet/artist Elise Asher; audiovisual material on Kunitz; photographs of Kunitz and the Stockmals; and newspaper clippings and other articles on Kunitz collected by the Stockmals. The materials document the twenty-year friendship between the Stockmals and Stanley Kunitz and his wife, artist/poet Elise Asher. The collection was given to Clark University in October of 2009 by Carol Stockmal after the death of her husband in 2008. It encompasses 5 ½ linear feet of shelf space and was processed by Carol Stockmal, Rodney Gorme-Obien, John Gaumond, Judith Ferrara and Fordyce Williams between May 2009 and April 2010.
